Author's Notes:
Day seven of the thirty-day drabble challenge!

Two boys in ill-fitting suits stood awkwardly next to the punchbowl.

"This dance sucks."

"Yeah, it does. Where's your date?"

"Bathroom. Yours?"

"Same. How's that going?"

"Shitty. I don't think she likes me."

"Sorry."

"S'okay. I didn't really want to ask her, anyway."

"Oh, yeah? Who'd you want to ask?"

A pause for dry-mouthed swallowing and the feigning of nonchalance. "Oh, nobody in particular, just, you know, not her."

"Oh, gotcha."

"How's yours?"

"Meh." A shrug. "I don't think my virtue's in any danger, if you catch my drift."

"Good to know." A beat. "Wanna sleep over tonight?"

"Okay."

"Cool."
